I have read and understood the Medicine Internship Regulations for MBBS Students in School of Medicine of Zhejiang University and solemnly promise:

1. Strictly abide by the Clinical Internship Regulations for MBBS Students in Zhejiang University School of Medicine. In principle, the School of Medicine does not recommend MBBS students to go abroad for internships.
2. Choosing to go abroad for internship is students' personal choice. It is their full responsibilities for their personal safety and to inform their families about their personal situation. School of Medicine and the MBBS office are not responsible for the students' personal safety and security since they will be performing their internship outside of Zhejiang University units. In case, their national teaching department disagrees with the internship result and does not recognize the internship results; then the internship cannot be completed before graduation, which can result in delay or failure to graduate and obtainment of the degree. If the student' future employment unit or post-graduate university does not recognize their internship experience outside of Zhejiang university unites, there's no chance to come back to make-up the internship as a student once he/she has graduated from our university.
3. The host hospital in foreign countries must be a teaching hospital (audited by the International Student Education Office of Zhejiang University School of Medicine). After the internship is completed, Student's supervisor doctors must sign the internship 'record book' as required and give the students an assessment (score), the host hospital also needs to issue an official certificate indicating the subjects and durations (with exact dates).
4. Students are required to return to China as the internship program scheduled. If you don't return to before the required deadline based on your internship program to Zhejiang University, School of Medicine, after practicing the internship abroad, your case will be handled according to the Detailed Rules for the Administration of Foreign Students (Undergraduate) of Zhejiang University in the International Student Handbook of Zhejiang University.

5.As soon as the policy on not allowing internship abroad is officially promulgated and implemented by the Chinese Ministry of Education, all students are required to follow the updated regulations.
